

Cite as: Special Section on Institutional Credibility and Function; Guest edited by Peter Ho
Land Use Policy, Vol. 79 (December)

Introduction

“Institutional function versus form: Evolutionary credibility of land, housing and natural resources”
Peter Ho, Land Use Policy, 79/12, pp. 845-853

After form. The credibility thesis meets property theory
Benjamin Davy, Land Use Policy, 79/12, pp. 854-862

A theorem on dynamic disequilibrium: Debunking path dependence and equilibrium via China’s urban property (1949–1998)
Peter Ho, Land Use Policy, 79/12, pp. 863-875

Zhang, Yue 2018. The credibility of slums: Informal housing and urban governance in India, Land Use Policy, 79/12: 876-890

Formalizing informal homes, a bad idea: The credibility thesis applied to China’s “extra-legal” housing
Li Sun and Peter Ho, Land Use Policy, 79/12. pp. 891-901

Clarke Donald. 2018, Form and function in China’s urban land regime: The irrelevance of “ownership”, Land Use Policy, 79/12, pp. 902-912

Mengistu, Frew and Meine Pieter van Dijk, 2018. Credibility of institutions in Addis Ababa (Ethiopia), effects of government policies on real estate developers, Land Use Policy, 79/12: 913-921

Niels Fold, Albert N.M. Allotey, Per Kalvig, Lasse Moeller-Jensen, 2018. Grounding institutions through informal practice: Credibility in artisanal mining of aggregates, Ghana, Land Use Policy, 79/12, pp. 922-931

Sharlene L. Gomes, Leon M. Hermans, 2018. Institutional function and urbanization in Bangladesh: How peri-urban communities respond to changing environments, Land Use Policy, 79/12, pp. 932-941

Whose urban development? Changing credibilities, forms and functions of urbanization in Chengdu, China
Jesper Willaing Zeuthen, Land Use Policy, 79/12, pp. 942-951

“Assessing evictions and expropriations in China: Efficiency, credibility and rights”
Eva Pils, Land Use Policy, 79/12, pp. 952-959